Cork-based marketing agency Fuller Marketing has announced a new addition to its team as it celebrates its third birthday.

The company has announced the appointment of Denise O'Donovan to its senior team as Marketing Manager.

Since 2015, Fuller has grown from a one-woman, home-based operation to a team of nine based on the South Mall, O'Donovan's appointment showing that it has no intention of slowing down.

"It's only our third birthday, so in relative terms we are still a 'new' outfit," Managing Director Ruth Fuller said.

"However, in truth, we have exited the business infancy mode and are now entering the established development phase.

"Denise's appointment at this time is the icing on our birthday cake. She is an award winning business-to-business marketer who is capable and driven, and is a perfect fit for our team."

Ms Fuller said the company was delighted to play a part in Cork's current new economic era:

"The backing from Cork's vibrant business community, the support and trust our clients have shown us, and the tireless work of our team have all culminated in Fuller Marketing's rapid growth in the last three years. Fuller Marketing is poised for significant growth and continued investment to galvanise further growth for our clients. Our client's international growth and expansion also opens many windows of opportunity, which we are poised and ready for!"
